Aglaonema Cutlass, commonly known as the Chinese Evergreen, is a stunning foliage plant originating from Southeast Asia. Its leaves boast a vibrant green colour with silver streaks, creating an elegant and exotic appearance. The plant's resilient nature and adaptability to a variety of conditions make it an excellent choice for indoor gardening, particularly in a glass house for plants or a greenhouse indoor setting.

Plant Care: Sunlight, Watering, Soil, and Repotting

Sunlight:

Aglaonema Cutlass thrives in low to medium indirect light, making it suitable for rooms with limited natural light. Keep the plant away from direct sunlight, as it may cause the leaves to burn.

Watering:

Water your Aglaonema Cutlass moderately, allowing the top inch of soil to dry out between waterings. Be careful not to overwater, as this can lead to root rot.

Soil:

Use a well-draining potting mix for your Aglaonema Cutlass to ensure proper moisture retention and aeration.

Repotting:

Repot your Aglaonema Cutlass every 2-3 years or when it becomes root-bound. Choose a slightly larger pot and fresh, well-draining soil to encourage healthy growth.

Common Problems and Remedies

Yellow Leaves: Yellow leaves on an Aglaonema Cutlass may indicate overwatering or underwatering. Adjust your watering schedule to ensure the soil remains moderately moist but never soggy.

Brown Leaf Tips: Brown leaf tips could be caused by low humidity or excessive fertiliser. Increase humidity by placing the plant on a tray filled with pebbles and water, and reduce fertiliser application.

Pests: Mealybugs, spider mites, and scale insects may infest Aglaonema Cutlass. Treat affected plants with insecticidal soap or neem oil to control these pests.
