Plant Care: Sunlight, Watering, Soil, and Repotting

Caring for Aglaonema Malay Beauty is a breeze, making it ideal for planting indoors or incorporating into an interior garden.

Sunlight:

Aglaonema Malay Beauty thrives in low to medium indirect light, making it suitable for rooms with limited natural light. Keep the plant away from direct sunlight, as it may cause the leaves to burn.

Watering:

Water your Aglaonema Malay Beauty moderately, allowing the top inch of soil to dry out between waterings. Be careful not to overwater, as this can lead to root rot.

Soil:

Use a well-draining, peat-based potting mix for your Aglaonema Malay Beauty to ensure proper moisture retention and aeration.

Repotting:

Report your Aglaonema Malay Beauty every 2-3 years or when it becomes root-bound. Choose a slightly larger pot and fresh, well-draining soil to encourage healthy growth.

Common Problems and Remedies:

Yellow Leaves:

Yellow leaves on Aglaonema Malay Beauty are often a sign of underwatering, overwatering, or insufficient light. Examine the plant's growing environment and adjust accordingly to help the plant recover.

Brown Leaf Tips:

Brown leaf tips are usually a result of low humidity or excessive fertilisation. To remedy this, increase humidity around the plant and reduce fertiliser application.

Pest Infestations:

Aglaonema Malay Beauty is occasionally susceptible to pests like mealybugs, spider mites, and scale insects. Keep an eye out for these pests and treat promptly with insecticidal soap or neem oil if needed.
